Author Teelie Turner has released her new story “Eliza the Easter Fairy”, the fourth in a series of holiday-themed tales which feature the appropriate holiday fairy on the cover. Each fairy also has its own line of T-shirts and other products which can be found on Redbubble, Amazon, and Zazzle.

Teelie Turner wishes to capture the imaginations of the young and young at heart with the story. “I wanted to let them in on something magical, kind of like a behind-the-curtain experience to Easter which they usually associate with Easter eggs, bunnies and tons of sweets. I thought, ‘Why not create a story filled with magic and fantasy so there’s more to Easter than just the material things?’ And here I am, finally launching the story I want to share to the world,” she explained.

The new fairytale revolves around Eliza, the Easter Fairy who’s struggling to get all the Easter eggs painted and decorated in time for the holidays. She receives help from six special fairies, her bunnies, and a duck. But Eliza is frantic as she’s about to reveal to her new fairy friends a little secret about Easter eggs that only she knows. Eliza describes herself as an ordinary fairy who is blonde, wears green shoes turned up at the toe, pink polka-dot leggings, and a dress in shades of pink and green.
